Passions Control Mind.

This is manifestly true. Cool, deliberate mind only is capable of governing rightly, and respects one point—justice—so that passion has nothing to do with the principle of government, but merely to certain modes of action on it. The mind of a government of love, or hatred, or mercy, is both vague and senseless. Governing in love is very proper, but is not the point under consideration. We punish a refractory child in love, but there were no stern justice back of that love as a governmental foundation, how could we punish in love or in any other way, except for the love of justice, which no good ruler could do? The divine love for a wicked world had direct reference to justice by which they were exposed. They say that the principle of government originated in love, or the affection of mind, instead of absolute righteousness, is an unphilosophical begging the question.

Justice and judgment are the hallmarks of the divine throne. Love is subordinate to law. But how very below this mental standard of government has the world fallen! Our history is one of passionate action instead of mental. Turbulent passion and the long record of the past cannot be unraveled without the recognition of mournful desolation. These passions having had the ascendancy, have mostly driven to destruction individuals, States and Empires. Though abundance of light has shown in our pathway, mind has been greatly improved and strengthened, so as to tower high and march rapidly onward in all the arts and sciences, despite stupendous obstacles, constantly gathering additional strength, yet are we almost unconsciously overthrown with more than mighty passions, bearing along with them their pestilential influence—war, poverty, imbecility, immorality and wretchedness untold.

We are indeed a bundle of passions which too nearly rule in pleasure, business, state and church. Though we come on the life stage with least passion, yet they gradually get better and better, until they are found everywhere, burning fire up, blazing out and violently spread abroad, threatening complete mental conflagration.

Among the less cultivated there are the more unbridled, violence, and bloodshed; yet how fearfully destitute of the principle of true mental government are the most literary and highly cultivated! We are too often forced to explain—how are the innumerable mighty fallen! O reason, fair jewel, whether hast thou fled? Noble men wisely retire from the thoughtless multitude and with staunch purpose enter upon the laborious course of preparation for brilliant achievement; and after patiently plodding through, are found content to the most intricate tasks in various departments. Hitherto mind has governed and all is well. But unfortunately, passion, unbridled passion—dreadfully welcome guest—suddenly and almost unintentionally saps their good foundation and then are gone. A very trifling affair may have been that rose of passion to the awful set of unreasoning sorrow—sorrow extending to more than one. And it is a poor consolation to say that it was done in a passion. Prof. Webster could say that, after the fatal blow was struck on Dr. Parkman; but what could it avail? Education may remove error but not passion.

It has achieved great triumphs, and in the war department; but whether for the real benefit of the human family or not, may be a question. Certain it is that abundantly more can be killed, and in a shorter time, and more scientifically. Such improvements are constantly being made and with like results. But the good sign for something that shall properly control the passions. As it is, touch with the national honor by insulting an official it may be, and the passion of one in authority ordains the sacrifice of one hundred thousand or more of peaceable citizens to restore that honor! At sober second thought, probably all will agree that mind should govern passion, but the simple question is, how shall the accomplished? Nature, education, philosophy, experience, interest and refinement have all failed to do it. One thing remains for the accomplishment of that object—viz: Divine grace. This can subordinate passion to mind. It has been partially done in vicinities, fully in individual cases. A general application of this grace, and passion, finds her own subordinate position, and noble mind reigns to man's good and God's glory.

A SUBSCRIBER.

Major E. H. Smith is bound to do something. The Mankato Record says: "he has the contracts for carrying the mails between Mankato and Jackson, and Mankato and New Ulm." If Chicago insurance fails, the Major will drive straight himself rather than be idle.

Wall street has overlooked the indiscretion of Edward Ketchum, and he is warmly received by the bulls and bears. It is reported that he has already made $100,000. Pretty good, considering that he has been out of Sing Sing on a few months.

Five men were recently hung on a tree at Fort Scott, Kansas. They had ravished two girls aged twelve and fourteen years. A sixth man was probably shot by one of his companions. All the people will say amen!

"The River of The West."

Is the title of a work recently issued from the press of the Union Publishing Co., 109 Washington St., Chicago. This work offers unexcelled inducements to agents. It has all the elements of a popular and reliable book. It treats of subjects which are new and very interesting, and the reader will be charmed. Agents are wanted everywhere. The New York Independent says: "This book is crammed with stirring adventure, picturesque description, and indeed has a very considerable historical value, as enclosing and perpetuating so many remarkable illustrations of a kind of life which is rapidly fading off the face of our country. The artist and engraver have been called into liberal requisition."

See the advertisement in another column.

Canada is once more terribly excited about the Fenians, who are just now pouring by thousands into that shabby land. Several little scoundrels have taken place, in which several lives have been sacrificed, the Fenians almost invariably taking to their heels. One Fenian will spoil the dinner of all Canada, and a single bullet from the musket of a Red Coat will put to flight a thousand Irishmen. The force is huge.

Very destructive storms have recently visited Iowa and New Jersey and Montana. The towns passed from the northwest to the southeast. Several persons were killed in different parts of the country.

Two more bodies have been found below La Crosse, one woman and one man, supposed to be victims of the War Eagle disaster. They have not been identified.

Alex. H. Stevens has completed his history of the rebellion. He is rapidly failing in health, and cannot long survive.

J. E. Thompson, President of the National Bank of St. Paul, died suddenly on Friday. His life was insured for $10,000.

State News.

The land office at New Ulm has been destroyed by fire.

The wife of Judge Hanscombe died recently at St. Peter.

Turkish baths are to be established in Winona by a lady.

The residence of a German in St. Paul, was struck by lightning last Wednesday.

A revolting case of infanticide has been brought to light about three miles from Preston.

The people of New Ulm are circulating a subscription paper for a new weekly paper at that place.

A house was struck by lightning in Austin last on the 20th inst. Three persons were severely burned.

A kerosene lamp exploded at Hinkley, one day last week, severely burning a girl 13 years old. She has since died.

The Mankato Express says that three children in the township of Kinley, were killed by lightning on the 21st ult.

The Lake Phipps steamer, May Queen, was lately burned while anchored at Lake City. Loss $21,000. No insurance.

An emigrant wagon passing through Rochester the other day, bore the quaint inscription, "Don't inquire—North Pole or bust!"

Nick Cobble, who was recently arrested for passing counterfeit money has been discharged, the facts showing no criminal intent.

The Warren News says that the house of An Robinson, of Olmsted, was struck by lightning on the 21st ult. Also the house of Henry Meyer, of Freeborn.

Geo. F. Potter, of Houston county, (the industrious bee), has been appointed Receiver of Public Money in the Land Office at Pembina, Dakota Territory.

The Polk County Press says: Over 200 pounds of speckled trout have been sent to St. Paul within the last few weeks, caught in the stream near Menominee.

The Mankato Union reports that another prize fight is to take place somewhere in that vicinity next Saturday, between Bridgeport Tom and Ted Handed Mike.

Last week Friday, the Agricultural Implement Manufacturing of Louth & Howe, at Owatonna, was entirely destroyed by fire. Total loss $15,000. No insurance.

A citizen of Mankato was walking along the river bank one day last week, he noticed a pair of shoes sticking out of the sand, and taking hold of one, found the dead body of a man attached.

The house of D. Bacon in St. Charles, was recently struck by lightning. The fluid went down the chimney, through the pipe into the stove in the kitchen, thence through the door into the cellar, where it disappeared, without doing any serious damage. The family were asleep at the time.

We learn from the Mankato Review that the St. Paul & Sioux City Railroad company have located their depot grounds at Mankato, on the lands of Messrs. Gilbert & Meyer, and in consideration therefore are to receive 30 acres of land and right of way. At St. James the depot grounds have been located on the southwest quarter of section 13 town 106 range 22, upon which the future city is to be located.

The Rochester Post says: A strange story has been told us of the storm of the 21st ult. It is that when the storm came up that evening, there were some half a dozen horses huddled together in the oak brush a few miles south of this city, and the next morning they were all found in a pit hole that had sunk beneath them during the night, some ten feet below the level of the earth. It is a curious story, but not altogether improbable.

We learn from the Rochester Post that there is some gold excitement at Oronoco, in Olmsted county. A few days ago a talk occurred in the blacksmith shop about the chances of finding gold, and the blacksmith going to the river bank and washing out some dirt, found some of the precious dust in it. The same thing was done by some others, and so much faith aroused in the existence of gold along the Zumbro that several parties are talking of forming a company for the purpose of gold mining. There is every reason to believe that the adventure may pay.

Never fill kerosene lamps after dark, but always in day time. Never allow a lamp to be placed on a mantle piece, whether the room has a grate or stove pipe, as the heat of the mantle will cause the oil to become inflammable, and more liable to explode when lighted. It is a common practice in factories to have their lamps hung on wire from the ceiling; they should be removed when not in use, as the heat of the stove causes the wire to sag, and the fact being the same in the second suggestion. Do not allow the wick to get baked or crusty; trim it frequently.

Penn's Escape—Humme and Sugar?

For Quakers. Mr. Judding, the Librarian of the Massachusetts Historical Society, in overhauling a chest of old papers deposited in the archives of that body by the late Hon. Robert Greenleaf, of Malden, has recently made a curious discovery which has special interest for the people of Pennsylvania. Among these papers was one of ancient date, which bore this endorsement: "Ye scheme to hugge Penna." This curious title attracted the attention of Mr. Judding, and he examined the contents of the document with more than common interest. It is in the familiar and quaint handwriting of the Reverend Cotton Mather, and is addressed to Ye aged and beloved Mr. John Higginson. It bears date September 16th 1682, and reads thus, the odd spelling of the original being followed to the letter:

There be now at sea a shippe (for our friend Mr. Esai Holcroft, of London, did advise me by the last packet that he would sail some time in August) called ye Welcome R. Greenaway, master, which has aboard an hundred or more of ye heretic and malignants called Quakers with W. Penn who is ye Chief. Seame at ye head of them. Ye General Court has, accordingly given ye secret orders to Master Malchell (last of ye brig called ye Welcome R. Greenaway) to sail as near ye coast of Coddas as may be, and to keep ye said Penn and his ungovernable crew, so that ye Lord may be glorified and not mocked on ye soil of this new country. With ye said shippe, and with ye said ye whole lotte to Barbadoes, where shaves fetch good price in the market, and shall not be ye Lord great service by punishing the wicked, but we shall make great gaine for the minister and people. The said shippe is faste hopeful, and I will set down the news as brings them in ye ships of come back.

Tours in ye bowle of Penna.

Master Huxett missed his reckoning, and Penn sailed secure within the caper of the Delaware.

Horace Greeley's Uncle.

From the St. Paul Pioneer.

Yesterday a gentleman aged 76, named Leonard Greeley, and claiming to be a uncle to Horace Greeley, of the New York Tribune, arrived in town under very painful circumstances. For some time he has been living with a son at Beaver Falls, this State. The son, however, recently died, leaving a wife and two or three children, and as the father in such poor circumstances that they could not keep the old gentleman, he was left without a home. Being thus destitute he applied to his nephew, Horace, who enough to take him in another son who resides in Greenbush, or Schuyler, Wis. In response to this application, Horace sent the old gentleman $50 which was sufficient to pay his fare to the place where the other son lives in Wisconsin. Having received the $50, Mr. Greeley left Beaver Falls on the steamer Tiger, for this place. On the way down it became apparent that he was afflicted with a species of insanity upon religious subjects. The insanity was of a very wild type, and he was not violent. Several persons on board took care of him, and when they arrived in this city placed Mr. Greeley in the hands of the Sheriff, but the Captain diverging his condition declined to take him unless some person was sent along to take care of him. The matter came to the knowledge of the Mayor and other city authorities, and steps were taken to have the old gentleman taken care of. The City Missionary formed us last night that an attendant was sent along with Mr. Greeley to La Crosse, and that the son in Wisconsin had been telegraphed to.

A brief interview with the uncle, whose name is Zechariah Greeley, led these present to think that Horace was not quite as good a young man as a gentleman of such pretensions ought to be. Zechariah said that he himself had been adopted into the family of Christ, but that Horace was not a believer in Christ, and did not belong to the family of God.

Didn't Catch the Train.

The most difficult thing (says a "quaint old back") in the world for a woman to do is to get ready to go any where. And there is nothing a woman will resort to except to be hurried, so that an indication that she possibly miss the train. Our friend, Brayley, gives us an instance of this. He was supposed to take the ten o'clock train on the Bee Line, to visit some relatives in an interior town. He was hurried on board by the porter, and he was not long in getting ready to go. He was not long in getting ready to go. He was not long in getting ready to go.

Remarkable Telegraphic Feat.

The experiment over the Western Union Telegraph Company's wire, of working long circuits through numbers of repeaters, was tried in New Orleans on the 15th inst, with remarkable success. Mr. C. C. Duncan, Chief Operator there, sent through nine repeaters—one at Rome, Ga.; Lynchburg, Va.; New York city; Pittsburgh; two at Cincinnati; one at St. Louis, Chicago and Memphis—the writing returned to New Orleans almost as clearly as when leaving the office, having passed through eighteen States, and over 4,800 miles of wire and electric current, traversing a distance in about three-fourths of a second. The writing was translated as rapidly as on ordinary short wires. The plainer's code was also in direct connection, and worked freely.

Perpetual Motion at Last.

The Detroit Tribune says: "A mechanic of our city, Mr. Joseph Carleton, who has placed of business in 499 Chagrin St., claims to have invented a time piece which when once started will never stop, which will correctly indicate the time for all ages to come, and which thus furnishes the answer to the hitherto unsolved problem of perpetual motion. Mr. Carleton asserts that he has a working model of this time-piece, which has thus far stood all tests, and declares the principle upon which it is based is simple and easily comprehended. As to the details of his invention he declines to at present make them public, and his model he refuses to place on exhibition, as the time piece has not yet been patented. Mr. Carleton assigns his lack of means as an excuse for his apparent negligence in this respect, and has authorized us to make, in his behalf, the following proposition to the public: If the people of this city will pay all the actual necessary expenses of procuring a patent for this invention, he will agree to place his time piece in some public hall or building, where its utility considered by our scientific men, and all who may feel interested. Then, if after a full investigation, it is found to be as valuable as claimed, he proposes that our citizens shall erect a manufactory for him. In return for this, he will agree to give Detroit the exclusive lease of all such manufactory, and on the binding himself not to sell any rights, nor to give permission to any one elsewhere to engage in the manufacture of the patent article."

A Hero of Eternal Divorces.

On the 11th of April, 1866, Samuel Leslie was married at Worcester to a young lady twenty-four years of age, Samuel having reached the mature age of fifty years. He had passed ten years before this, each of whom had obtained divorces from him. She had known him for the 8th of March to the 11th of April, but he had money, and she laid all the blame upon her former wife and gave him her young and virgin heart. She lived with him but a short time when she discovered that he was a womanizer, and he commenced to play his affection for her by hitting her over the head with a shoe, throwing boiling water at her, driving her out of doors at the dead of night, and other such acts as were not very pleasant, to say the least. She applied for a divorce, but he pleaded so warmly and made her so many promises that she withdrew her application, but he soon afterwards renewed his former course and she again made application. This time the suit was prosecuted, and on Saturday Judge Boynton gave her the divorce and $1,200 alimony. This was the eleventh divorce suit that had been brought against him—(London O.) Times.

The Mankato Record contains a lengthy account of a fire which occurred there last Sunday morning. The loss is estimated at $13,000, and is partly covered by insurances. The fire was first discovered issuing from the rear of an old frame business house on Front Street, opposite the lot, formerly occupied by Burko's grocery store. All the buildings between Shauba's brick store, and Lullander's brick store and residence, were consumed—a continuous row of five wooden buildings—including the law office of Willard & Barney. The Record says there is no doubt the fire was the work of an incendiary.

A Stray Harroes.

A poet says: "Oh! she was fair, but sorrow came and left his traces there." What became of the rest of the harroes he don't state.
—Eric Hopton.

Oh, no! Further down the hill of poetry it says: "Come with me, my love, and I'll take thee to my home." The balance of the harroes is still missing.—La Crosse Democrat.

You are mistaken about that. The same poet, speaking of the same young lady, says: "And all the lines that sorrow had left faded out in joy." The rest of the harroes is still missing.—Lebanon.

No, still another piece has turned up, for further on the same poet says that, "Loving hands and simple flowers had lacked her for the drink." Nothing has yet transpired as to the whereabouts of the rest of the harroes.—York Republican.

All a mistake, for had not Walter said: "Give me but what this bell hath bound, take all the rest the sun goes round." Don't be discouraged, friends, the rest of the harroes is bound to come.—Ohio State Journal.

Of course it is, for hath not the poet said: "When Greek meets Greek then comes the Tag of War." Pass along the balance.—Toledo Blade.

No more, no more. We'll give you only what Gratiano proposed for Shylock: "A halberd; nothing else, for God's sake," Chicago Post.

And yet there is more, though the poet says: "The lassie blaw'd and frowning, cried, no, no, it will not do. I cannot, cannot, cannot, cannot, cannot do."
